

EDUCATORS!

School Fuel, in collaboration with the Marin County School Volunteers program, would like your input on how you could utilize highly trained and committed volunteers.

Volunteers would be:

- Extensively trained in various subject areas
- Committed and reliable
- Fingerprinted, TB tested and screened

Volunteers could help:

- Tutor students in classrooms or in after school homework clubs
- Work one on one with struggling students
- Group students in classrooms for project based work
- Assist in library research projects
- Assist students with college applications or scheduling issues
- Mentor students at all levels

Take a moment this summer and let us know how this program could work best for you and your school site. MCSV trainers are willing to have training classes for volunteers in Novato to draw in community members who wish to help. To learn more about training classes email or call Suzanne Rush at the Marin County School Volunteers at mcsvmcoe@marin.k12.ca.us or 499-5896.

School Fuel hopes that with community volunteers teachers and staff will receive more help and the community will receive better insight into our public schools.
